Eighteen of the students of Bethel College spent one of the pleasantest days of the summer last week, August 20, at the home of Mrs. J. C. French at her cottage on the shore of Bangs Pond. The table was laid on the piazza and a would-be hard to concentrate all the good things floating was one of the pleasantest days and all agreed that the day would not be forgotten.

Mrs. Sidney J. French met with a person who had been in Bethel Saturday. Mrs. French had called on an errand and Mrs. French stood upon the piazza. The house was filled by a crowd and in the confusion the man got caught in the hall. The house was filled and Mrs. French could escape. Her leg was pinned down under the table. No traces were broken but the fragments are and were elevated. Mrs. French's friends extend their sympathy.

LICENSED--TO DO WHAT?

Licensed to make a strong man weak;

Licensed to lay the wise man low;

Licensed a wife's fond heart to break;

And make her children's tears to flow.

Licensed to do thy neighbor harm;

Licensed to kindle hate and strife;

Licensed to nerve the robber's arm;

Licensed to whet the murderer's knife.

Licensed thy neighbor's purse to drain;

Licensed to heat his feverish brain;

Licensed to make this world a hell,

N. Y. Observer.

SUNSHINE COMES TO-MORROW.

True it is that clouds and mist

blot the clear blue weather;

True that lips that once have kissed

come no more together.

True that when we would do good

Evil often follows;

True that green leaves quit the wood,

Summers lose their ravellings.

True that, in this age of ours,

There are none to guide us--

done the grand primeval power!

Selfish aims divide us.

True the plaint. But, if more true,

I would not deplore it;

If an Eden fade from view,

Time may yet restore it.

Evil comes and evil goes,

But it moves me never;

For the good, the good, it grows,

Buds and blossoms ever.

Winter still succeeds to spring,

But fresh springs are coming;

Other birds are on the wing,

Other bees are humming.

I have loved with right good will,

Mourning my hopes departed--

Dreamed my golden dream--and still

Am not broken-hearted.

Glad am I, and glad will be;

For my heart rejoices

When sweet looks and lips I see,

When I hear sweet voices.

Apple blossoms on the trees,

Gold cups in the meadows,

Branches waving in the breeze,

On the grass their shadows--

Black birds whistling in the wood,

Flocks shouting o'er us,

Clouds, with white or crimson hood,

Pacing right before us.

Who, in such a world as this,

Could not beat his sorrow?

Welcome this sweet sunset bliss--

Sunrise comes tomorrow.

SOMEWHERE.

Somewhere the wind is blowing.

I thought as I strolled along

In the burning heat of the roadside,

And the face made me strong;

Yes, somewhere the wind is blowing.

Through here where I pass and sigh,

Not a breath of air is stirring.

Not a cloud in the burning sky.

Somewhere the thing we long for

Exists on earth's wide band;

Somewhere the sun is shining

When winter nips the ground.

Somewhere the flowers are springing.

Somewhere the corn is brown,

And ready unto the harvest

To feed the hungry town.

Somewhere the twilight gathers,

WHY SIDE WITH?

I asked her why she wept, and the truth she revealed by holding up before me an onion she had peeled.

ROAD and FARM IMPROVEMENT

GREAT SCENIC HIGHWAY.

Yellowstone and Glacier National Parks to be linked by Four Hundred and Fifty Mile Road.

The greatest good roads project ever undertaken in the west is now under way—a scenic highway linking Yellowstone National park and Glacier National park, under federal, state and county control. The Hamilton (Mont.) chamber of commerce is the originator and primary promoter of that idea.

The route suggested between the great scenic park highway of America is 450 miles in length and through a territory which, while mountainous, is said to present few difficult engineering problems. In fact, the road is already well defined and needs only to be united and rebuilt, not entirely, but in several instances.

The route appears on the map somewhat like a half crescent, which is the most direct line possible in this part of Montana. The Yellowstone and begins in the western entrance, going west by north, past numerous lakes, through the southern panhandle of Gallatin county and over to Montana. In Madison county, where it connects with the Oregon Short Line. Soon after leaving Montana it enters Beaverhead county, paralleling Beaverhead creek to Dillon. From Dillon its general direction is northward, passing through Jackson, Hot Springs and Wisdom and swinging over the divide into Ravalli county, meeting the east fork of the river for river valley. Entering Missoula county, it continues north through the city of Missoula and the towns of St. Ignace and Ronan. At the foot of Flathead lake, in Flathead county, it enters Polson, passing around the west side of the lake, through Dalton and on to Kallispell and Columbia Falls, then northeast to Belton, the entrance to the Glacier National park.

Read to Top of Mount Washburn.

It passes through six counties and approximately forty towns. It connects four railroads, the Oregon Short Line, the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and Puget Sound.

The first and foremost reason for the construction of such a highway is the connection it will make between the two wonderful parks. It will afford closer co-operation in the management thereof. It will be as great a gift to the American people as the parks themselves, for in all America there is no road with greater scenic attractions and such facilities of transportation and capability of maintenance.

It traverses a territory of changing scenery, part of which as long ago as the pressed Lewis and Clark with the rapidly increasing attendance at the Yellowstone National park and the opening of the Glacier park there will be an urgent demand for connection between the two, and at present there is not even a direct railroad line, but with a federal highway similar to those in the parks and with transportation companies operating motor and other lines tourists would be afforded an opportunity of seeing both parks as well as the great country between.

BUCKET SLEDGE.

A Device That Will Save Your Back From Strain While Cleaning Dairy Houses.

A bucket sledge that your wife will thank you for and one that anybody will find handy when cleaning out the dairy house, provided you cannot push it with a streamer from a horse, is made of two boards, as shown in the sketch, the lower one fast staff, the upper half hick. Cut a circular piece from the upper piece of wood large enough to allow the ball to set down in the opening, so keep the bucket from tipping over. Screw casters to the bottom of the heavier board and a screw eye at one edge into which a rope can be slipped for drawing the sledge. This will save a great deal of lifting and, consequently, much back ache.

FUN IN THE HOME.

Bring to It Bright Pictures and Pleasant Thoughts and Bar Out Business Worries.

Whatever your lot in life, keep joy with you, says Orion Sweet Marden in Success Magazine. It is a great healer. Fear, worry, jealousy, envy, bad temper, create friction and grind away the delicate human machinery so that the brain loses its cunning.

Half the misery in the world would be avoided if the people would make a business of having plenty of fun at home instead of running everywhere else in search of it.

"Now For Rest and Fun." "The Business Troubles Altered Here." These are good home building notions.

When you have had a perplexing day, when things have gone wrong with you and you go home at night exhausted, discouraged, blue, instead of making your home miserable by going over your troubles and trifles just bury them. Instead of dragging them home and making yourself and your family unhappy with them and recalling the whole evening, just look everything that is disagreeable in your office.

Just resolve that your home shall be a place for bright pictures and pleasant memories, kindly feelings toward everybody and "a cooling good time" generally. If you do this you will be surprised to see how your vacation or business worries will be ironed out in the morning and how the crooked things will be straightened.

THINK IT OVER

Would the ablest business men in the country have a bank account if there was no advantage or convenience in it? Would they have been able to reach their present commanding position if they had spent half their time worrying about the safety of the money they had made?

invites you to open an account as they did. The same advantages they found in so doing will accrue to you if you accept the invitation.
